Andenken (Remembrance), Op. 100

Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy
(1809-1847)

Translation of the German:
The trees are greening in the vale,
The flowers bloom again,
And now once more the nightingale
Will sing his old refrain.
Oh, who yet sings and laughs is blest;
His heart by spring is still caressed.

All nature that in slumber lay
Again to life will waken,
And in the grove will blossoms gay
In sun's embrace be taken.
No birds, no blooms for me are fair,
I miss you, miss you everywhere.

Oh, dearest heart, in your embrace
Shall I no more find pleasure?
Now spring for me has lost its grace;
No blooms nor songs I treasure.
Without you springtime cannot be!
Pray, what can springtime be for me?
